LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Develop self-learning strategies.
- Acquire the grammatical, lexical and functional knowledge corresponding to level B2, as described in the CEFR and developed in the Cervantes Institute Curriculum.
- Improve the four communication skills: speaking, listening, writing and reading.
- Apply the knowledge acquired to real-life situations.
- At the end of the course, students should be able to:
 - Critical Reading Comprehension: Understand the main ideas of academic texts and complex essays on both concrete and abstract topics, even if they are technical in nature, provided they are within their field of specialisation.
 - Formal Oral Interaction: Interact with native speakers with a sufficient degree of fluency and naturalness, participating in academic debates and presenting information in a structured and persuasive manner.
 - Formal Written Production: Produce clear and detailed texts (e.g. argumentative texts) with formal rigour, defending a point of view on general topics and indicating the pros and cons of different options.

STUDENT MOBILITY AT OUR UNIVERSITY

The University of Almeria was in 2025 the choice of more than 700 students from 50 different countries from all continents to undertake a mobility period.

These numbers are the result of a long tradition of cooperation with Higher Education Institutions, not only from Europe through the Erasmus+ programme but also from Latin America, the USA, Africa and Asia through mobility programmes such as ISEP, PIMA, ANUIES or CONAHEC.

OUR HISTORY

The University of Almeria, one of the youngest and most dynamic of Spain, was created by the Andalusian Parliament in 1993 as a proposal of the Governing Council of the Junta de Andalucía.

Some figures reflect the dramatic growth of the University of Almeria over the years.

Students have increased from 6,600 in the year 1992 to more than 14.000 in the current academic year. We also have more than 1000 post graduate students.

The administrative and service staff has grown from 130 in 1993 to more than 500 recently.

And the research groups, which were 17 in the academic year 93/94, in this far exceed 150 last year.

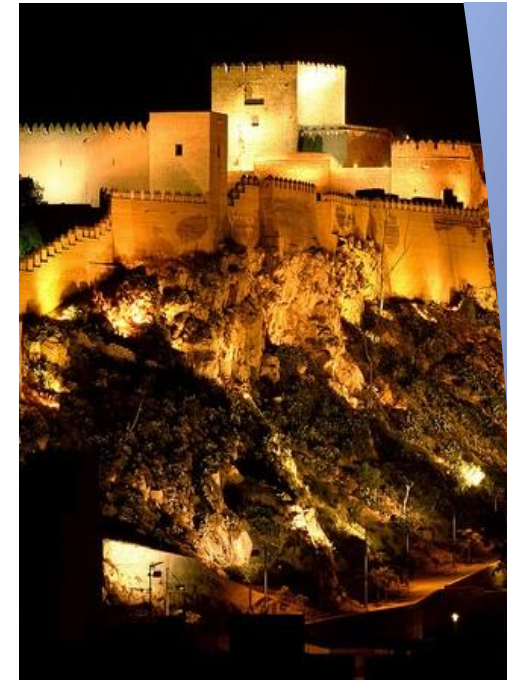

Our university offers the students the opportunity to study more than 38 undergraduate courses, 45 official Master's degree programmes and 15 doctoral programmes.

We are partners with more than 590 Universities around the world.
